About the Session / Event

The Faculty Induction Programme on Research Publication and Grants was organised to introduce faculty members to the essential aspects of academic research, research publication, and opportunities for obtaining research grants. The session commenced with a welcome to the faculty members and the resource person, followed by an overview of the importance of research and publication in higher education.

Objective of the Programme

To provide faculty members with an understanding of the research publication process, identifying suitable journals and publication opportunities, preparing quality research manuscripts, and exploring research funding and grant opportunities.

The session began with an introduction to the importance of research publication and the role of scholarly research in academic and professional development. The resource person discussed the major stages involved in developing a research paper, including identifying a relevant research problem, reviewing existing literature, formulating research objectives, selecting an appropriate methodology, analysing findings, and presenting the research in a structured manner.

The faculty members were also introduced to important considerations while selecting journals for publication, including journal relevance, scope, quality, indexing, publication standards, and ethical practices. The discussion highlighted the need to avoid predatory journals and to follow appropriate academic and research ethics while submitting manuscripts.

The session included an interactive discussion where faculty members could clarify their queries related to research publication, journal selection, manuscript preparation, research ethics, proposal writing, and grant applications. The interaction enabled the participants to understand practical approaches for initiating and strengthening their research activities.

Outcome of the Session

The session was interactive and informative. Faculty members gained a better understanding of the research publication process and the key requirements for preparing and submitting quality research papers. The session also enhanced their awareness of research funding and grant opportunities, proposal preparation, and the importance of aligning research ideas with appropriate funding guidelines. Overall, the programme encouraged the faculty members to actively engage in research publication and explore suitable research grant opportunities.

Conclusion

The Faculty Induction Programme successfully provided a foundation for new faculty members to understand the significance of research publication and grants in academic career development. The session concluded with an emphasis on continuous research engagement, responsible publication practices, and proactive exploration of funding opportunities.
